Going Places with Children in Washington, DC 18th Edition

Going Places With Children in Washington, DC is the most comprehensive guidebook to Washington, DC and the surrounding metropolitan area, including sites within a two-hour drive from the region. Two generations later, parents, students, teachers, and grandparents provide the litmus test for visiting favorite new and less well known sites in and around Washington, DC. Whether your child is fascinated by space or lizards or wall-climbing or puppets, Going Places can direct you quickly and easily to an outing that meets those interests. Called the "definitive book of its kind" by The Washington Post, Going Places with Children in Washington DC has been published by Green Acres School in North Bethesda, MD for 55 years. The book started as a mimeographed sheet for parents of the many field trips taken by the students of Green Acres School. Today, the book is updated and maintained by staff and parent volunteers. This book gives you the inside scoop on the favorite sights and kids activities in DC and the surrounding areas.
