Life Stood Still Marianne N. Michaels

A fictional story, inspired by true experiences and people.

Billionaire, William Serros III seems to have it all. Power, fame, money. But there is one thing that Serros has sought after, for twenty years, that money can't buy. There is one thing that he can't control. One thing that he can't fix. His playboy son, John.

John, you see is a middle-aged drug abuser. He has been for the last twenty years. Having been in and out of rehab four times already, nothing seems to help him. The ravages of addiction have taken their toll on John. His body has declined from so many years of debauchery that it almost gives up, and he suffers a massive heart attack.

Serros has lost one son already, and the sorry state of the other has led to much grief for the family. He resorts to extreme measures to help his son. However, God has an even better Plan, and through divine interventions, healing occurs for more than just John. Here is their story.
