The Samsung ARTIK is program developed to help users reduce their Internet of Things (IoT) product development, allowing your product to get to the market faster. The end- to- end strategy allows users create their own modules, cloud on- boarding or network stack so they concentrate more on the product or service they wish to improve. The built- in network stack and radios found in Samsung ARTIK modules along with the REST API for cloud services and interfaces to iOS and Android devices decreases the amount of money users will have to put into obtaining hardware, and cloud development. They will be ready for shipping in May 2016.
